Member Spotlight

Royalton Music Center

Royalton Music Center moved to a new location after 47 years in business. The beautiful new facility at 10167 Royalton Rd. is truly state of the art. The family business which was started in 1964 by Ida Eleck (right) and her husband Richard, was later run by their daughter Sheri Haas.

Southwest Unitarian Universalist Church

Southwest Unitarian Universalist Church, led by Rev. Christine Neilson, dedicated their new building on May 1 with a special service they called, "If These Walls Could Talk." The ceremony featured stories about the different groups that have occupied the building over the years, from the Disciples of Christ, to the Masons, Royalton Players, and now the SWUU, located at 6320 Royalton Road.

Walthall, Drake & Wallace LLP CPA's is hosting a Not-For-Profit Board Member Orientation Seminar on Wednesday June 15, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at Walthall, Drake & Wallace LLP CPAs offices, 6300 Rockside Road. The seminar is Free and includes breakfast. To RSVP, call 216-573-2330 or c.bade@walthall.com to receive log-on information.

Topic is "Understanding the Responsibilities of a Not-for-Profit Board Member." This presentation is designed to help individuals become effective board members for not-for-profit organizations (NFPs). It is based on the expertise of CPA firms, including Walthall, Drake & Wallace LLP, that work closely with NFPs, their staff leadership and boards of directors.
